N( )TING further that no Response was filed on behalf of Mr. Issa Masan Sesay within prescribed tiv ie limits although Counsel had indicated orally at the Pre-Trial Conference on 29 April 2004 that he wished to adopt the submissions of Counsel for Gbao;

N ) TING THE SUBMISSIONS OF THE PARTIES

I. THE SUBMISSIONS

A The Motion:

1. The Prosecution requests the Trial Chamber to take judicial notice of the facts set out in A inex A of the Motion and the facts contained in the documents listed in Annex B of the Motion as ' f cts of common knowledge' under Rule $94(\mathrm{~A})$. In the alternative, it requests that these facts be ar misted into evidence under Rules 89(B) and (C) and 92bis. ${ }^{1}$

24 June 2004

2. The Prosecution emphasises that the function of the doctrine of judicial notice is to expedite pro :eedings and promote judicial economy which accords with the object and purpose of the Special Col.rt and its limited temporal existence. It is submitted that the Court 'must find the balance bet reen the principle of judicial economy and the right of the Accused to a fair trial'?
3. The Prosecution argues that pursuant to Rule 94(A) of the Rules, the Trial Chamber is under an sbligation to take judicial notice of 'facts of common knowledge', which was interpreted by the Int rnational Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda ("ICTR") in the Semanza case to mean 'those facts wh ch are not subject to reasonable dispute including, common or universally known facts, such as ger eral facts of history, generally known geographical facts and the law of nature, ${ }^{3}$ According to the $\operatorname{Prc}$ secution, this includes authoritative documents such as those of the UN and affiliated bodies. Th : Prosecution also relies on the Nyiramasuhuko case ${ }^{4}$ where judicial notice was taken only of the exi tence and authenticity of certain UN Security Council documents. According to the Prosecution, the definition of 'common knowledge' may extend to legal conclusions based on facts established ber ond a reasonable doubt. ${ }^{5}$
4. The Prosecution emphasises that it is not seeking from the Court judicial notice of facts wh :ch directly attest to the guilt of any Accused but that the Court may only take judicial notice of no orious facts which cannot be reasonably disputed. ${ }^{6}$
5. The Prosecution argues that Rule $89(\mathrm{~B})$ of the Rules provides a legal basis for the Chamber to tale judicial notice of, or admit in evidence, certain facts when the interests of justice so require. Ac cording to the Prosecution, the Chamber has a broad discretion in determining what is relevant ev dence under Rule 89(C) and that there is a principle of 'extensive admissibility of evidence' based or the competence of professional judges to evaluate evidence. ${ }^{7}$

[^0]6. The Prosecution submits that under Rule 92 bis of the Rules, there is a two-prong test of relea ance and the existence of the possibility of confirming the reliability of the evidence. The Prosecution con ends that the documents in Annex B are relevant as they refer to the factual allegations as stip ulated in the indictments and since they are authoritative sources their reliability can be con irmed by the documents themselves or by oral testimony. ${ }^{8}$
7. The Prosecution submits that, while judicial notice under Rule 94 of the Rules is mandatory, adn itting evidence pursuant to Rules 89 and 92 bis of the Rules is discretionary and urges the Ch: mber to exercise its discretion in favour of admitting the said documents as evidence. ${ }^{9}$

Gb o Response

8. The Defence submits that the Prosecution Motion is premature and that questions of evic ence should only be addressed after the commencement of trial. The Defence argues with regard to : Jule 89 that it is not in a position at this stage to consider the admissibility, relevance, source, ava lability of better evidence, purpose of admission and probative value of the documents referred to by the Prosecution. ${ }^{10}$
9. The Defence argues that judicial notice is exceptional given its mandatory nature. ${ }^{11}$ The De ence submits that taking judicial notice of facts of common knowledge should not remove the pos sibility of rebuttal in all circumstances. ${ }^{12}$
10. In order to respect the rights of the accused, the Defence submits that facts of common knc wledge should be non-controversial, indisputable, non-legal and not involve assertions of criminal act vity covered by the indictment. ${ }^{13}$
11. The Defence accepts that the Court can usefully be guided by the principles developed in the pri ir jurisprudence of ad hoc international criminal tribunals but favours the essentially restrictive apl roach whereby judicial notice is necessarily a tool of the most exceptional application. ${ }^{14}$

12. The Defence proposes the following principles:
a) A court should not take judicial notice of matters that are subject to reasonable dispute.
b) A court should not take judicial notice of legal conclusions or conclusions of mixed law and fact.
c) Judicial notice should not be taken of alleged facts which constitute fundamental elements of crimes charged in the indictment.
d) A court should not take judicial notice of matters which are too marginal, indirect or of remote connection to the issues in the case such that taking judicial notice of them does not materially advance the proceedings. ${ }^{15}$
13. The Defence accepts that the facts set out in paragraphs $(B),(E),(H),(K),(L),(M),(N),(O)$, (P) $(Q),(S),(T),(U),(V)$, and $(W)$ and $(X)$ may constitute proper subjects for judicial notice. ${ }^{16}$ The De once details its reasons why the remaining facts are not proper subjects of judicial notice. ${ }^{17}$
14. With respect to documents, the Defence submits that the Court can only take judicial notice of he existence and perhaps authenticity of documents, but not the contents thereof, save where it ha: been shown in relation to each specific fact that it is a fact of common knowledge. ${ }^{18}$

Pr section Reply to Gbao

15 The Prosecution submits that its motion is not premature ${ }^{19}$ and refers to the Semanza decision in which the ICTR took judicial notice of some of the facts before the trial commenced in "the int serest of aiding the parties in preparing their respective trial presentations". ${ }^{20}$

16 The Prosecution denies that taking judicial notice or admitting the facts and documents will un airly interfere with the rights of the Accused and urges the Court to find the balance between the pr nciple of judicial economy and the right of the Accused to a fair trial. ${ }^{21}$ It asserts that the entire pu pose of judicial notice will be defeated if the Defence is allowed to call evidence at the trial to rel ut those facts judicially noticed. ${ }^{22}$

17 The Prosecution reiterates that the correct definition of common knowledge is that defined in th i Semanza case ${ }^{23}$ and not that suggested by Defence. It submits that the test by Defence is not $\mathrm{suj}^{\prime}$ ported by any legal authority and is inordinately high. ${ }^{24}$

18 The Prosecution agrees with the Defence that the facts it identified are proper subjects for jus icial notice, but submits that the remaining facts also satisfy this test. ${ }^{25}$

$\underline{K} \underset{\text { lon Response }}{ }$

19 The Defence asserts that while the Statute values expedition, this does not change the fact th a $t$ the Accused is entitled to a fair trial and the right to cross-examine. The Defence submits that the Chamber may grant judicial notice of a fact or document where the Prosecution has de nonstrated that:
a) the facts are relevant to the question of the guilt or innocence of the Accused;
b) the facts are not the "ultimate facts in issue in the case";
c) the facts are not disputed; and
d) it is not seeking notice of "unadorned" legal conclusions. ${ }^{26}$

20 The Defence states that it is prepared to accept that the facts set out in Paragraphs (B), (E), (M , (N), (O), (T), (U), (V), and (X) of Annex A may be judicially noticed. ${ }^{27}$

21 The Defence submits that the remaining facts in Annex $A$ are not proper subjects for judicial no ice and gives detailed reasons concerning each Paragraph. ${ }^{28}$

22 The Defence submits that the criteria for admissibility under Rule 89 and 92 bis are relevance ant additional safeguards, reliability and procedural fairness. ${ }^{29}$

23 Concerning the documents contained in Annex B, the Defence submits that the Chamber ma $\gamma$ take judicial notice of the fact of the existence of the documents and the authenticity of Security Co incl Resolutions and official UN Documents and Peace Accords and Agreements between Qc rernments. The Defence submits that the contents of the rest of the documents, in particular the

It states that the documents concern events in Sis rra Leone during the 1990s are replete with disputed allegations concerning the RUF and cannot be said to be impartial. It concludes that to judicially notice these documents would prevent the Ac cused from defending himself. ${ }^{30}$

Pr secution Reply to Kallon

24 The Prosecution reviews in detail the submissions of the Defence regarding its objections to th admission of the facts in Annex A and submits that the Court should judicially notice these pa ticular facts. ${ }^{31}$

25 The Prosecution notes the Defence objections concerning the documents listed in Annex B. Açin, the Prosecution submits that the Court should judicially notice the facts contained in the do suments or find that the facts should be admitted as evidence. ${ }^{32}$

II. DELIBERATION

I. Introduction

26 This Motion invokes the jurisdiction of this Court with respect to the application of one of the lar 's oldest doctrines, namely the doctrine of judicial notice. To underscore the universality of the dc :trine, it is important to note that though the doctrine, as is understood today, can be traced back to its common law origins, it has received recognition in some civil law jurisdictions but not in ot iers. ${ }^{33}$ It is imperative, therefore, preliminarily, for the court to expound on the nature and scope of the doctrine nationally and internationally as a basis for examining the merits of the Motion.

24 June 2004

2i. The Motion seeks from the Trial Chamber an order judicially noticing the proposed facts re sited in Annex A as well as those enumerated in the documents listed in Annex B as facts of co mon knowledge, pursuant to Rule 94(A) of the Rules or, in the alternative an order admitting th : same in evidence pursuant to Rules 89 and 92 bis of the Rules and in accordance with the spirit of th : Statute of the Special Court and the principles of fairness.

II . Legal Basis for Motion

2£. The Prosecution's Motion is, as regards the primary or main order, filed pursuant to Rule 94(A) of the Rules which provides that:

A Chamber shall not require proof of facts of common knowledge but shall take judicial notice thereof.

Ir respect of the secondary or alternative order, the Motion is brought under Rules 89(C) and 92bis of the Rules. According to Rule 89(C) of the Rules:

A Chamber may admit any relevant evidence.
Fir rather, Rule 92 bis of the Rules enacts as follows:
(A) A Chamber may admit as evidence, in whole or in part, information in lieu of oral testimony.
(B) The information submitted may be received in evidence if, in the view of the Trial Chamber, it is relevant to the purpose for which it is submitted and if its reliability is susceptible of confirmation.

$I^{\prime}$. The Doctrine: Common and Civil Law Perspectives

$2^{\prime \prime}$. This Court has already addressed the issue of judicial notice in its Decision on Prosecution's Notion for Judicial Notice and Admission of Evidence dated 2 June 2004 in the case of the Prosecutor v. Sam Hinga Norman, Moinina Fofana and Allieu Kondewa ("CDF case") and it adopts here in its ell tirety those comments made therein as to the common and civil law perspectives on the doctrine of jv dicial notice.

[^2]3C Judicial notice is "the means by which a court may take as proven certain facts without hearing av dence. ${ }^{34}$ The principle underlying the doctrine of judicial notice has been variously stated. It was clef arty articulated by the English Court of Appeal in the recent case of Mullen $q$. Hackney London Bc rough Council in these terms:

> It is well established that the courts may take judicial notice of various matters when they are notorious or clearly established, or susceptible of demonstration by reference to a readily obtainable and authoritative source that evidence of their existence is unnecessary (see Phipson on Evidence, $14^{\text {th }}$ edn., 1990 CL $2 / 06$ ).
> Generally, matters directed by statute, or which have been so noticed by the well-established practice or precedents of the Court, must be recognized by the judges; but beyond this, they have a wide discretion and may notice much which they cannot be required to notice. The matters noticeable may include facts which are in issue or relevant to the issue; and the notice is in some cases conclusive and in others merely prima facie and rebuttable (see Phipson Ch 2/07).
> Moreover, a judge may rely on his own local knowledge where he does so properly and within reasonable limits. This judicial function appears to be acceptable where "the type of knowledge is of a quite general character and is not liable to be barred by specific individual characteristics of the individual case." This test allows a judge to use what might be called "special" (or local) general knowledge (see Phipson Ch $1 / 09$ ).
3. As to its scope in English law, courts are enjoined to be cautious in treating a factual cc inclusion as obvious, even though the man in the street would unhesitatingly hold it to be so. ${ }^{36}$ It is al o the law that judges and juries may, in arriving at their decisions, use their general information ard that knowledge of the common affairs of life which men of ordinary intelligence possess, they $m$ ty not act on their own private knowledge or belief regarding the facts of the particular case. ${ }^{37}$

3: . By way of comparison, the American version of the doctrine bears significant juridical affinity tc the English model. At the federal level, judicial notice is covered by either Rule 44.1 of the Fid deal Rules of Civil Procedure or Rule 26.1 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. Under th ese provisions, an American court can take judicial notice of a fact if it is "not subject to reasonable d spute" and falls within one of two categories: (a) if it is "generally known within the territorial pu risdiction of the trial court" or (b) if it is "capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sc urces whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned". Federal Rule 201 cover is limited in scope al d governs only "adjudicative facts".

V The Doctrine: International Criminal Law Perspectives

3:. The Chamber would like to reiterate here that part of its decision in the CDF case dealing with this issue. In the context of international criminal law, it has been observed that the doctrine " I as had a significant but unhappy existence". ${ }^{38}$ Despite this profile of the doctrine in international cr minal law, its importance in the field is unequivocally acknowledged to be that of significantly ex editing trials. ${ }^{39}$ One such viewpoint is that "the failure to exercise [judicial notice] tends to sn other trials with technicality and monstrously lengthens them out". ${ }^{40}$
34. With the foregoing brief analysis of national criminal and international criminal law perspectives of the doctrine, the Chamber now proceeds to ascertain the evolving applicable pu isprudence as it can be deduced from the practices of international criminal tribunals antecedent to this Court ${ }^{41}$, notably, the International Criminal Tribunal for former Yugoslavia ("ICTY") and the IC TR.
3. Briefly, the Chamber notes that the practice of judicial notice in those tribunals revolves ar round Rule 94 of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence of both tribunals as the statutory authority $\mathrm{fc}_{\mathrm{c}}$ : the doctrine. Their Rule 94 is ipssissima verba with Rule 94 of the Rules which is in these terms:
(A) A Chamber shall not require proof of facts of common knowledge but shall take judicial notice thereof.
(B) At the request of a party or proprio motu, a Chamber, after hearing the parties, may decide to take judicial notice of adjudicated facts or documentary evidence from other proceedings of the Special Court relating to the matter at issue in the court proceedings.
31. As to its scope, the Chamber takes the view that, from a plain and literal construction of Rule 9. of the Rules, the said Rule authorises either the Trial or Appeals Chamber to take judicial notice of three (3) categories of facts: (i) facts of common knowledge, (ii) adjudicated facts from other p oceedings before the Court, and (iii) documentary evidence from other proceedings before the C yurt. The obligation is mandatory. As was stated in the Semanza decision which this Court applies p. rsuasively as being logical and consistent with the plain meaning and intendment of the Rule, the $\mathrm{r} \varepsilon$ tionale behind the doctrine is twofold: (i) to expedite the trial by dispensing with the need to

[^4]suk mit formally proof on issues that are patently indisputable, and (ii) to foster consistency and un formity of decisions on factual issues where diversity in factual findings would be unfair. ${ }^{42}$
37. Evidently, in the Chamber's opinion, Rule 94(A) of the Rules requires judicial cognisance of on $y$ facts which rise to a threshold level of "common knowledge". This interpretation of the Rule is cle: rly supported by case-law authorities from ICTY and ICTR, two such decisions being rendered in the cases of Prosecutor v. Tadic ${ }^{43}$ and Prosecutor v Ntagerura et al., ${ }^{44}$ which this Chamber finds to be log cal and consistent with the plain and literal meaning of the rule and its purpose, and will the efore apply persuasively.
38. As a matter of statutory significance, the Chamber finds, as it did in the CDF case, that the exf ression "common knowledge" has been, and continues to be, the subject of subtle legal int rpretation. Instructively, in the Semanza decision, ${ }^{45}$ the Trial Chamber took the view that the ph ase includes facts "...so notorious, or clearly established or susceptible to determination by ref rence to readily obtainable and authoritative sources that evidence of their existence is un recessary." Professor Bassiouni and Manikas have also suggested that the interpretation of "facts of coi mon knowledge" does cover and extend to all "those facts which are not subject to reasonable dis sute, including common or universally known facts, such as general facts of history, generally $\mathrm{kn}, \mathrm{wn}$ geographical facts and the laws of nature., ${ }^{46}$

39 The Chamber further notes, as it did in the CDF case, that despite the exacting requirement the $t$ facts must rise to a level of "common knowledge" to be judicially noticed, there is authority for the proposition that "a proposition need not to be universally accepted in order to qualify as co1 1mon knowledge" ${ }^{47}$, implying that courts may take judicial notice of facts that are not scientifically prs vable or beyond all dispute under Rule 94(A) of the Rules. ${ }^{48}$

[^5]40. In the Chamber's view, another key principle for which the Semanza decision is authority as to the scope of Rule 94(A) of the Rules relates to the issue of to whom a fact or proposition must cor ımonly be known to qualify for judicial cognisance. On this issue, the Court had this to say:

> ... 'common knowledge' encompasses those facts that are generally known within a tribunal's jurisdiction or capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot be called in question. ${ }^{49}$
41. By logical deduction, in the Chamber's estimation as a matter of statutory construction, cor monly known but inaccurate facts cannot be judicially noticed within the meaning and int ndment of Rule 94(A) of the Rules. Therefore, based on the reasoning in the Semanza decision, ons e a Court makes a preliminary determination that a fact is one of common knowledge within a cot rt's jurisdiction, it must then proceed to a judicial evaluation of whether the fact merits the che racterization of one that is "reasonably indisputable".
42. Guided, therefore, persuasively by the Semanza decision as to the legal criteria applicable un ler Rule 94(A) of the Rules in determining the merits of applications for judicial notice brought bef re international criminal tribunals, the Chamber will now proceed to evaluate the merits or oth erwise of the Prosecution's Motion for judicial notice.

VI Evaluation of Application's Merit under Rule 94(A) of the Rules

43. Having determined the applicable jurisprudence on the subject of judicial notice in reference to his Chamber's previous findings in the CDF case, the Chamber now undertakes an evaluation of the merit or otherwise of the Motion based on the foregoing exposition of the law in the int rnational criminal law field, evidently recognising the doctrine's contribution in the national cri ninal law systems as a basis for its application in the international criminal law field.

44 The Chamber has carefully examined and reviewed each of the alleged facts enumerated in Ar nex A of the Prosecution's Motion. The Chamber notes that there are few challenges by the Cc ansel for the Accused Gbao and Kallon to some of the alleged facts. The Accused Gbao agrees the $t$ the alleged facts (B), (E), (H), (K), (L), (M), (N), (O), (P), (Q), (S), (T), (U), (V), (W) and (X) may be juc icially noticed and the Accused Kallon agrees that the alleged facts (B), (E), (M), (N), (O), (T), (U), ( $\mathrm{V}_{\text {. }}$, and ( X ). The Chamber further notes that no response was filed on behalf of the Accused Sesay, alt tough his Counsel indicated orally that he adopted the submissions of Gbao.

45. Applying the relevant jurisprudence and being judicially sensitive to the need to protect the right of each Accused to a fair trial in matters of this nature and seeking to strike a balance between jud sial economy and the said right, the Chamber finds as follows in respect of Annex A to the Mo ion:
(i) that alleged facts (A), (B), (D), (E), (J), (K), (M), (N), (O), (P), (U), (V), (W), and (X) do qualify for judicial notice as formulated;
(ii) that alleged facts (H), (Q), (R), (S), and (T) do qualify for judicial notice in a judicially modified form as listed in Annex I to this Decision;
(iii) that all other so-called facts of common knowledge listed in Annex A to the Motion do not qualify for judicial notice for the reason that they are not beyond reasonable dispute;
(iv) that the facts found to qualify for judicial notice:
(a) are relevant to the case against the Accused persons;
(b) are not subject to reasonable dispute;
(c) do not include any legal findings or characterizations; and
(d) do not attest to the criminal responsibility of any of the Accused.

Thı facts judicially noticed are hereby deemed conclusively proven.
46. By parity of reasoning, the Chamber has carefully examined and reviewed each of the doc aments enumerated in Annex B of the Prosecution's Motion. As regards the enumerated doc aments, the Chamber, applying the relevant jurisprudence makes the following findings:
(i) As to their existence and authenticity:
(a) Documents $10-29$ do qualify for judicial notice;
(b) Documents 51 (repeated at 65), 62, 64, 76 and 77 do qualify for judicial notice;
(c) Documents 67-72 do qualify for judicial notice;
(ii) As to their existence, authenticity and contents:
(a) Documents $1-9$ do qualify for judicial notice;
(b) Documents $55-58$ do qualify for judicial notice;
(c) Documents $88-92$ do qualify for judicial notice;
13.

24 June 2004
(iii) that the rest of the documents so enumerated do not qualify for judicial notice, for the reason that either their existence and authenticity or their existence, authenticity and contents, as the case may be, are not beyond reasonable dispute.

Th i documents judicially noticed are also deemed conclusively proven as to their existence and aut renticity. The said documents are annexed to this Decision in Annex II.
47. The foregoing findings of conclusiveness, in the Chamber's view, concludes the evidentiary inc airy in respect of these facts. We rule that these judicially noticed facts of common knowledge car not be challenged at the trial of the Accused herein predicated upon our prior finding that they are beyond reasonable dispute.

Eva luation of Application's Merit Under Rule 89 and 92bis of the Rules

48. The Trial Chamber finds no basis in law, at this stage, without more, to enable it to assess wh sher the presumed reliability of the alleged facts and documents not accorded judicial notice in pu suance of Rule 94(A) even if relevant for the purposes in respect of which they are submitted, is sues septible of confirmation.

III. DISPOSITION

Pu rsuant to Rule 94(A) of the Rules,
HI REBY GRANTS the Prosecution's Motion in respect of the facts enumerated in Annex I to this Nf cision, which Annex embodies some of the facts contained in Annex A of the Prosecution's M. ion; and DENIES the said Motion in respect of all other facts as listed in the aforesaid Annex A;

Gl ANTS the Prosecution's Motion in respect of the documents enumerated in Annex II part I to th : Decision, but only in so far as their existence and authenticity are concerned and in Annex II pa t II in so far as to their existence, authenticity and contents are concerned, which Annex embodies son e of the documents contained in Annex B of the Prosecution's Motion; and DENIES the said Mo ion in respect of all other documents listed in the aforesaid Annex A.

Stewart in International Criminal Law Review 3, 2003, p. 245-274. See also a Pa er entitled "Presumptions and Judicial Notice" by Michael A. Patterson and Edward J. Walters Jr., Baton Rouge Bar As ociation, 1998 Bench Bar Conference, Alabama. One example of a civil law system adoption of the doctrine is Section 24 (3) of the German Criminal Procedural Code which provides that "An application to take evidence shall be rejected if the tak ng of such evidence is inadmissible. In all other cases, an application to take evidence may be rejected only if the taking of such evi ence is superfluous because the matter is common knowledge, if the fact to be proved is irrelevant to the decision or has already been pre ied...". Article 90 of the recently adopted Russian Penal Code also deals with the theme of previously adjudicated facts.

[^2]:    B contrast, the Austrian Penal Code 1975, does not contain any provision recognising the doctrine of judicial notice p assumably due to the existence of the inquisitorial system which envisages a strong role for the judge in the process of gi cering evidence, especially the investigative judge in pretrial proceedings, which does not allow the parties to request tl at judicial notice be taken of facts (See Federal Law Gazette, no $631 / 1975$ as amended by the Federal Law Gazette 1: /2004). Also the Slovenian Criminal Procedure Act does not recognise the doctrine of judicial notice (See Zakon o K.zenskem Postopku, Ur. 1 RS st 116/2003).
